

Employee Policy & Benefits Handbook

Company Knowledge Base — Synthetic Training Dataset

This handbook provides fictional company policies for use in a Retrieval-Augmented Generation training laboratory. It is intentionally synthetic and contains information about employee leave, attendance, remote work, travel, benefits, performance, learning, conduct, and separation. Participants should use this document as the sole knowledge source for their RAG application.

1. Working Hours and Attendance

The standard working schedule is Monday through Friday, from 9:00 AM to 6:00 PM, with a one-hour lunch break. Employees are expected to record attendance through the organization's attendance portal. Employees working in approved flexible arrangements must still complete the required working hours. Late arrival of more than 30 minutes should be reported to the reporting manager when it is unavoidable. Repeated unexplained late arrivals may be reviewed as an attendance issue.

2. Casual Leave

Employees are eligible for 12 days of casual leave in a calendar year. Casual leave is intended for short-duration personal requirements. Employees should request casual leave through the HR portal wherever possible before the leave begins. Managers may review leave requests based on project requirements and team availability. Unused casual leave cannot be carried forward to the next calendar year.

3. Sick Leave

Employees receive 10 days of sick leave per calendar year. Sick leave may be used when an employee is unwell or needs to attend to an immediate health-related requirement. For an absence of more than two consecutive working days, the manager may request appropriate supporting documentation according to company procedure. Sick leave is not convertible into cash at the end of the year.

4. Earned Leave

Employees receive 18 days of earned leave per calendar year after completing the applicable eligibility requirements. Earned leave is intended for planned personal time, vacations, and extended breaks. Employees should normally submit planned earned-leave requests at least seven calendar days in advance. Up to 10 unused earned-leave days may be carried forward to the next year, subject to company rules.

5. Work From Home Policy

Eligible employees may work from home when the role, project, and manager approval permit it. Employees working remotely must remain reachable during agreed working hours and attend scheduled meetings. A standard work-from-home arrangement permits up to two remote working days per week unless a project-specific exception is approved. Employees are responsible for maintaining a suitable and secure working environment.

6. Travel and Expense Policy

Business travel must normally be approved before tickets or accommodation are booked. Employees should use approved travel vendors whenever available. Economy-class air travel is the standard for domestic business trips. Hotel reimbursement is subject to the applicable city category and company limit. Employees should submit eligible travel expense claims within 15 calendar days after returning from the trip. Original or electronic receipts should be retained for reimbursable expenses.

7. Medical Insurance Benefits

Eligible full-time employees are covered under the company's group medical insurance plan. The standard employee coverage limit is INR 5,00,000 per policy year. Dependents may be added according to the insurer's eligibility rules and the company's enrollment process. Employees should contact the benefits desk for cashless hospital network information, claim procedures, and policy-specific exclusions.

8. Performance Appraisal

The organization follows an annual performance appraisal cycle. Employees are assessed against role objectives, delivery outcomes, collaboration, professional behavior, and relevant competencies. Employees normally complete a self-assessment before the manager review. The final rating is based on the organization's performance framework and is not determined solely by project revenue or hours worked.

9. Learning and Development

Employees are encouraged to participate in approved learning programs. The learning and development team maintains a catalog of technical, professional, and leadership courses. Employees may request manager approval for programs that support their current role or an agreed career-development objective. Completion of a course does not automatically guarantee promotion or a salary revision.

10. Code of Conduct

Employees are expected to behave professionally and respectfully toward colleagues, customers, vendors, and other stakeholders. Discrimination, harassment, retaliation, deliberate misuse of company resources, falsification of records, and unauthorized disclosure of confidential information are prohibited. Concerns should be reported through the designated manager, HR channel, or ethics reporting mechanism.

11. Information Security

Company systems and data must be used only for authorized business purposes. Employees must protect passwords, authentication tokens, confidential documents, and customer information. Sensitive information should not be copied to personal storage or shared through unauthorized services. Lost devices, suspected phishing attempts, or suspected data exposure should be reported promptly to the IT security team.

12. Employee Benefits

Eligible employees may receive benefits including medical insurance, learning support, and selected employee-wellness programs. Benefit eligibility can depend on employment category, tenure, and applicable policy conditions. Employees should consult the benefits portal for enrollment windows and current provider details.

13. Resignation and Notice Period

Employees who resign must submit a formal resignation through the approved HR process. The standard notice period for regular full-time employees is 60 calendar days unless the employment contract specifies a different period. During the notice period, employees are expected to complete knowledge transfer, return company assets, and support an orderly transition. Any early-release request requires appropriate management and HR approval.

14. Employee Support Channels

For HR policy questions, employees may contact the HR helpdesk. For IT access, device, or security issues, employees should contact the IT service desk. Benefits-related questions should be directed to the benefits desk. Employees should use official company channels for confidential requests and should avoid sharing sensitive employee information in public forums.
